The trading platform allows customers to trade in cryptocurrency derivatives including futures, indexes and spot markets. The company is focused on providing the next generation of financial services to Russian traders and a few foreign traders and institutions. Ginko's trading platform is a few months old. In the first week, the company has processed tens of thousands of orders totaling over $1.5 million. The platform allows customers to trade in cryptocurrency derivatives including futures, indexes and spot markets. Lior Ron, CEO of Ginko Financial, stated that he believes a few traders are very excited about the platform because of the opportunity to trade altcoins. Ron mentioned that the company has already identified, developed, and has been selling a fiat gateway to allow traders to deposit and withdraw US dollars and other fiat currencies.
