I'm using the Google C++ Mocking Framework (gmock_main.h and the GMOCK_main.cpp found in [google]/googletest/googlemock) and it works well for me. But I don't want it to be part of my main code. So I have these functions: void do_something(const std::string& input, std::function process, std::function on_failure) { auto data = get_data(input); //... Process data... //... Output data to screen... if (error) { on_failure(); } } I only want Google Mock to be able to mock get_data() and I'm using a test class named DataMock (in [google]/googletest/googlemock/googlemock-main.cc). Is there any way that I can make it so that the mocked functions are not used by my main program, but are instead used by my tests? A: You can do something like this: class DataMock : public ::testing::Test protected: std::string get_data(std::string input) { f3e1b3768c
