Theoretical investigation of the transition state for the OH + CH₃ reaction. The PESs for the OH + CH₃ reaction are studied at the G3(MP2)-RAD level of theory. The IRCs, TSs and barrier heights are computed. The reaction of OH with CH₃ is observed to have a significant barrier height and to be exothermic. The reaction mechanism is explained on the basis of the active TSs, and some of the possible products are predicted. A detailed analysis of the barrier height of the reaction reveals the important role of the CH(3) H-bonded moiety, and the nature of the chemical reaction. Polling shows Trump has an approval rating of over 80 percent among men and a disapproval rating of under 30 percent. Donald Trump's strong lead in the presidential polls continues unabated, with most of his latest predictions coming true. Even as Americans protest in large numbers against his controversial immigration policy, his supporters are excited. They applaud his strong stance on issues such as the environment and his plan to give every student an opportunity to go to a private school. They are also delighted with his strong stand on religious freedom and his promise to protect the Second Amendment. Trump also enjoys the support of a large number of people who are neither undecided nor supporting Hillary Clinton. In fact, a lot of these people are college educated, and they are critical of Mrs. Clinton. A large number of undecided voters are also supporting Trump. With 99 percent of precincts reporting in the GOP primaries, Trump is leading with 49.8 percent of the votes, compared with the 41.9 percent earned by John Kasich, who has been running in the GOP primaries since day one. Trump's lead has been shrinking but still at around 10 percent. Trump is happy with the poll results as the continuing to trend ahead. However, his friend, John Oliver of Last Week Tonight, has expressed concern over

Trump's strong support among white men. White men support Trump by a strong margin of 84 to 8 percent. These numbers, which have been consistent for a while now, have sparked a lot of concern among Americans, most of whom are worried about the impact of his proposed policies on the country. Donald Trump's strong support among white men is a result of both his strong views and the political promises he made during the campaign.

Trump supporters, in particular,
