NEW YORK (AP) — Grammy nominee Kacey Musgraves is set to collaborate with American rapper Blue Ivy and her daughter with Prince and Beyonce, Blue II, on her new album, the singer said in an interview published Monday. Musgraves is a country music singer who is nominated for a Grammy in the best country solo performance category for her 2013 album “Same Trailer Different Park.” She’s managed to continue her success despite a tour canceled this year because of injury. “She was born in July and I was born in August. So we’re like the trash-talking twins. She was born the day before my 23rd birthday,” she said. Her daughter “has her own room,” said Musgraves, who has a 2-year-old son with husband Daniel Decatur Brown. “She’s taking after her dad, so she can come at a moment’s notice to watch a TV show or come see me.” Musgraves said she and her new collaborators are in the early stages of planning the album, which will be released next year. The trio also have a song named “Baby,” which features rapper Big Sean and was released about a year ago. Musgraves said during an appearance at the Largo at the Coronet in Los Angeles that Blue is a “wonderful, funny kid.”
