I'm new to SQL and I need some help please. I have a table named'record' that has 2 columns. +------------------------+ | record | +------------------------+ | record_id | model | +------------------------+ | 1 | bike | +------------------------+ | 2 | bike | +------------------------+ | 3 | bike | +------------------------+ | 4 | car | +------------------------+ I also have a table named 'brands' that lists over 200 different models of cars, which are stored with the value 'car' in a field. Each record in the'record' table has a column named'model' which stores the manufacturer for the model that record is associated with. I want to write a SQL query that will return the records from the table that have a'model' column value of 'bike', and then write the value 'bike 1cb139a0ed
