It's that time of year again when teachers bring out their holiday ornaments, dress up in their little Christmas parties, and give their students a little treat for a good holiday! My favorite moment is when I get to see the kids' faces when they discover these little treats. This week, I was on the hunt for some edible treats to give my kids for this week's party! My first thought was to try these sugar cookies, so I went to our grocery store to see if they had any in stock. Unfortunately, the stockist didn't know they were back in stock, so I went home to see if I could find some. Little did I know that my genius sister-in-law had some sugar cookies. SOOOOOO excited to try these in my classroom! I know that many of you have been doing this as well, so if you have any that you are using in your classroom, I would love to hear from you
