Doing “extreme asceticism” means refraining from a lot of worldly good things: you don’t have regular meals, you don’t have any robes, you don’t have any bed to lay in and you don’t wear anything on your head (only an ordinary, unornamented cloth). To be as long as you can a man who has never had a glimpse of peace and happiness, and who should be sad and miserable. Gautama doing extremes ascetical is an animated screensaver which represents the steps of Gautama Buddha in the process of achieving enlightenment. Then you can see how Gautama achieve enlightenment by going through different types of ascetical. The first is the mendicant who gathers all his needs (including food and clothes) for himself. The second is the sadhu who is living on sea water and palm leaves. He eats only once a day, and he has no robes or bed. The third is the tapasi who is completely naked. Even if a cold wind hits him, he would not feel cold, because he has no clothes. The fourth is the one living on air (not supported by any solid ground). The fifth is the yogi. He can see Buddha, Bodhisattva and Devas (The Divine Geatva are also included, which are the Bodhisattvas, the ghosts and the gods), he can see heaven and hell. Gautama doing extremes ascetical Screensaver is a small, animated screensaver specially designed to bring some peace to your desktop. You can show the images with moving visuals and music, and you can shut the screensaver by left-clicking on the border of the desktop. If you tighten the string too tight it will snap, but if it is too loose it will not play. As we know, it is said that he who thinks of the means, will find the absolute, and we need to see this thing. Installing Gautama doing extremes ascetical

"About the apostles' eating, I have nothing else to say." — John 7:24b Here is an idea that is new for me to write about and study. Jesus says, "about the apostles' eating, I have nothing else to say." What does he mean by this? Let's start with what Jesus says in this verse: "And he did not say to them, 'Go and make merry,' " "because these are my friends to whom I am going." "Rather, he said, 'I tell you, it shall be more bearable on the day of judgment for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah on the day of judgment than for that city!" I think that some of you recognize the expression, "the day of judgment," because you study the judgment of God. Sodom and Gomorrah were notorious for their sexual immorality, and they came to pass in (or fell from

Gautama doing extremes ascetical Gautama ~ Life & Teachings (Gautama Dhammacakkappavattana Sutta) In Gautama ~ Life & Teachings, Gautama is recounting his life to Ananda. Gautama is among the Buddha's most famous disciples, but he is also one of the Buddha's most flamboyant. Gautama is described as a perfect being, and is one of the Buddha's most important disciples. Gautama is born into a family of royals in what is now Nepal. His father, the King, asks his son to renounce the world, but his mother convinces him otherwise. Gautama is then sent to live at the court of King Kassapa who had asked the Buddha to teach his monks. The Buddha is so attracted to Gautama's ascetic lifestyle that he stays at the palace for six months before he chooses to leave. He then sets out to search for the origin of truth and enlightenment. In his search for enlightenment he meets Ananda, his friend and secretary. Gautama is very gentle and compassionate; he loves to practise austerities (living on a diet of rice and water, or on the bare earth) and he tries to save the life of the flies. His conversion is quite simple and passive. The Buddha is teaching at one of the forest monasteries at Devatavatthu when he meets Gautama who is wandering around the deer park. After a series of questions Gautama becomes the Buddha's first disciple. Gautama Dhammacakkappavattana Sutta In Gautama Dhammacakkappavattana Sutta, the Buddha reveals his most important teaching: the dhamma. This teaching includes the Five Noble Truths. The Buddha was asked by Ananda, his close friend, his wife, and his secretary, to teach the dhamma to him. Ananda was a royal secretary and later the Buddha's closest advisor. Ananda is one of the Buddha's most important students. The Buddha answers Ananda's question with seven statements which are: Kama is desire Moha is attachment Tapa is
