TNF- α induces expression of Rab11a in vascular endothelial cells: implications in transendothelial migration. Adhesion and migration of inflammatory leukocytes into tissues is a crucial process in the pathogenesis of various inflammatory diseases. Tumor necrosis factor α (TNF- α) is a key proinflammatory cytokine that mediates transendothelial migration of inflammatory cells. The small GTP-binding protein Rab11a plays a key role in the modulation of receptor-mediated endocytosis. However, the expression and function of Rab11a in vascular endothelial cells (VECs) remains to be defined. Here we show that TNF- α upregulates Rab11a expression in cultured human umbilical vein endothelial cells (HUVECs). TNF- α -mediated Rab11a upregulation is dependent on the p38 mitogen-activated protein kinase (p38 MAPK) signaling pathway. Pharmacological inhibition of p38 MAPK signaling and overexpression of Rab11a siRNA markedly suppress TNF- α -induced adhesion and migration of leukocytes to VECs. Moreover, p38 MAPK activation is found to enhance the expression of Rab11a in VECs. Our results suggest that p38 MAPK signaling pathway, which is activated by TNF- α , is involved in the upregulation of Rab11a in VECs and that Rab11a may contribute to enhanced leukocyte-endothelial interaction in inflamed vessels.

Irish wine has a reputation of being cheaper and worse than it really is. The fact that it's better than most other wine brands is a bonus but the reputation is fair enough - there are few wines that are cheaper than a bottle of Irish whiskey. But is the drink in fact bad? You have to ask, does it live up to the hype? I know my answer to the latter question. It's a better drink for a bar than whiskey (you won't find the same medicinal after-effects as well as the taste), it's far easier to drink (a spirit that you could drink a case of for the price of a bottle is a fair bargain) and it's an important part of our social

At the 20th anniversary edition of the Buena Vista Music Festival, the festival will present not one, but three bands at the head of the 2018 bill: headliners My Morning Jacket, Pearl Jam and The Head and the Heart. It will be the first time the festival has featured three headlining acts in a single year. All three bands hail from the Pacific Northwest, the home of the Buena Vista. All three are known for rocking massive, rain-delayed, music-crazed all-day outdoor shows in the dead of the Northwest winter. As with most festivals, the lineup is represented by smaller acts. But the sheer number of prominent rock bands making appearances at the event is the real draw to the festival. "It's two very prominent artists from the same band," said Ryan Donnelly, festival director of Buena Vista Music Festival. "And it's not a band we've had in the past, so that's a pretty special deal." But there are a few more things that make this year's lineup unique. Buena Vista has a limited amount of mainstage space, a fact that opens up slots for smaller acts on the festival grounds. In addition, there will be a free children's festival for kids and parents on the festival grounds, with music and activities that appeal to the younger set. Some of the older acts, such as My Morning Jacket, are no strangers to playing outside, but will be playing in Buena Vista's new non-traditional, in-the-woods amphitheater. There is also a lineup of local acts to boot, so this is one festival you definitely don't want to miss. "This is our 20th anniversary year," said BVPD public affairs specialist Wyatt Gifford.
